

Testimonial at University of North Texas, USA

Last year I got an opportunity for attending the exchange program from Thammasat University which is one of the most greatly invaluable experience I was found in my entire life. I chose to go study at University of North Texas(UNT).

North Texas is the upper region of the Texas state in United States. In this region, there is an area called DFW (Dallas-Forth worth) it can proudly called to be the most modern and fashionable area of Texas state where UNT also standing in this area. UNT is set up in small town city called Denton. From my perspective, I really quite like this city a lot. The city has some sense of country style in the modern way. You can see lots of boutique shop and many good restaurants in the downtown. You can find the best steak, which I bet you will never try from anywhere else. The transportation is also quite easily. There is a shuttle bus travel around the city for every 15 minutes in each station. In the weekend, you could also go to travel to Forthworth or Dallas city, which just only take 40 minutes in driving. These are just my main reasons for loving to stay at this university.

At the first day of orientation, the environment was very warm welcome for the new incoming exchange student like me. They staffs gave us me about the information needed that pretty much sum up everything you need. I and other exchange students were taken to get an new student ID card and open the bank account. After that, we took a campus tour to see what building I need to go. The accommodation where I stayed is more than I asked for. I was lucky to stayed with another thai student. We got our own bedroom, just sharing the living room, which is great. We have kitchen, big tv screen. The place where we stayed is an off-campus apartment but the leasing price is so reasonable. Within the apartment, we got an computer room, private reading room, fitness center, gaming room and music room. So that is one of the reason why I still miss my exchanging time.

The class was also great. As my major is finance, so the majority of my classes were conducted in business building. All of instructors were very nice and very helpful. Student also have a great contribution for a good environment in class. When they know that I am an exchange student, they are willing to help me as much as they could. The group work was very well organized; everyone has their own self-discipline. When the final exam comes, library was where students belong and it open for 24 hours. I really like this learning system at University of North Texas. I also joined the wine lover club which I can also gain an academic credit from this club for benefits. This was broaden my horizon, I did learned everything about not only wine but the entirely world of alcohol drink. In every session, I will get samples of each drink and we will discuss about their roots, how their produce and where it came from, which was very fun for me who have special interesting in this topic.

To sum up, I believe that study at UNT is the great choice for anyone who want to gain a great experience for their study aboard life.
